Customer Reviews

I got this when the price went down for $12. The illustrations are great and the main reason I bought the game. I also love the container the cards came in. I haven't had the opportunity to play it yet but I think this will be a great party game.

It is a fun game, with recent TV shows. Not much in terms of any rules. We decided to make our own and do it between couples. Pick 8 cards, and have up to 5 minutes to try and guess as many cards right as you could. Then the person on the other team who is choosing has 2 minutes to 'steal' any cards that were not guessed by the other couple. A full round is when each member of the couple has had a chance to 'guess'. Then you add up the points. I can see how after a few miles of usage that the owner might start to recognize all the cards. An expansion pack within a year might be a good idea to keep things fresh.

It's a fun concept, but they have very difficult television shows. If you don't watch HBO, Starz, or any of the special channels then you will never be able to guess 99% of the shows. Most of the answers come from these stations.

This was fun, but to be honest we'll probably only play it once since we'll remember the answers. Interesting facts on the cards.

I bought this as a Christmas gift for my husband and wasn't expecting it to be so much fun!! We randomly pull a card while hanging out but it seriously saved a brunch we were throwing that was super awkward and quiet! Good thing to have in the game closet! Even the grumpiest people get excited when they know the answer!

Fun the first time around, but it isn't really a game, and after you have played through the cards once, you can't really KEEP playing. Fun "extra" gift for a TV lover, though.

I don't watch enough television to know many answers to these identify these programs. I will be regifting it.

A one time game and with some truly obscure clues.
