Book by Sidney Greenberg

Rabbi Sidney Greenberg was a congregational Rabbi in Dresher, Pennsylvania for over fifty years until his retirement in 1996. He is the author and editor of a good number of books of sermons, and wisdom- writing. In this particular anthology he gathers the thoughts of a wide- variety of modern Rabbis from all streams of Judaism. There are many interesting and moving thoughts in this excellent collection. There are also many aphorisms I personally take exception to. But I prefer to give a few examples of those sayings I like. No one person is alone when he can cling to a chain of tradition in which he is a later link. Rabbi Joseph Lookstein In Judaism social action is religiousness, and religiousness implies social action. Leo Baeck The divine test of a man's worth is not his theology but his life. Morris Joseph Self-complacency is the companion of ignorance. Solomon Shechter Is real as vital Jewish society will awaken Jews to become active participants in shaping the future of the Jewish people's moral and spiritual legacy.
